Senators Walsh, Reed and Gore to Be Speakers at Friday Night's Great Meeting

The American takes pleasure today in announcing the names of the speakers who will address next Friday evening's "America First" Thanksgiving meeting in Mechanics Hall, Huntington avenue. They are:

United States Senator DAVID I. WALSH of Massachusetts.
United States Senator JAMES A. REED of Missouri.

United States Senator THOMAS GORE of Oklahoma.

In all the land there probably is no citizen who does not know that Reed, Gore and Walsh take high rank among the nation's orators. All three jumped the traces of partisanship in the Senate to fight the "evil thing with a holy name" from which the United States escaped on election day by a plurality rating 4,000,000.

Every American who reads these lines is cordially invited to be present on Friday evening in Mechanics Hall. The meeting will be American first, last and all the time. The decorations will be American. From "Yankee Doodle" up through "Dixie," the "Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home" to "Columbia" and the Star Spangled Banner.

Hon. Joseph E. Warner, Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, will preside.

The meeting will be opened promptly at 7 o'clock, at which time it is hoped that every man, woman and child in the city will be present. The program will be a patriotic song by amateur singers. Every American who reads these lines is cordially invited to be present on Friday evening in Mechanics Hall. The meeting will be American first, last and all the time. The decorations will be American. From "Yankee Doodle" up through "Dixie," the "Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home" to "Columbia" and the Star Spangled Banner.

Call off your intended visit to Aunt Mary. Everything she can want, do to Mechanics Hall with your American wife and American family, and enjoy such a truly American Thanksgiving—America First—as has not been seen heretofore in several years.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF OFFICER RILEY HELD

Reuben Seichentano, 34 years old, of Harrison street, Cambridge, was arraigned in the Cambridge Court today, charged with the murder of Patrolman Thomas J. Riley. He waived examination and was held without bail for the grand jury. Five companions, who were with Seichentano, when it is claimed he shot the officer, were held in $10,000 bonds each until January 19 on material witnesses. Riley died today at the Cambridge Hospital from a bullet fired when he ordered a car to stop at the corner of School and Harrison streets. The police say Seichentano admitted that he fired the shot.

GOV.-ELECT COX BACK FROM PORTO RICO

Gov.-elect Cox, 52—headed by Governor-elect Chauncey H. Cox and Mrs. Cox of Massachusetts, a delegation from that State, which unveiled a tablet to the memory of the soldiers of the Sixty Massachusetts at San Juan, P. R., returned today on the steamer Mohawk from San Juan. Among others in the party were General Charles K. Darling, Attorney-General J. W. Allen and Colonel E. T. O'Hara. The tablet was unveiled in the municipal building at San Juan on November 13.

Gets Back $300 Didn't Know He Had Lost

"Impossible," cried Clarence A. Charles of No. 34 Dakota street, Dorchester, when a policeman informed him at his home in the wee small hours of the morning that he had a pocketbook containing $300 believed to be Charles' property. The Dorchester man dived for his vest hanging on the bedpost and to the money was missing. After considerable delay Charles convinced the policeman that the wallet was his. The officer told him that the money was found on a man who had been placed under arrest. Charles believes that the pocketbook was stolen from him while on his way home on an early morning car.

IRISH BROTHERS FOLLOW FIGHTING AND RAILS FOLLOW DUBLIN MASSACRE; NEW OUTBREAKS

London, Nov. 22.—Thirty-one persons have been killed in Ireland in the bloodiest week-end the country has ever known. Between seventy and one hundred were wounded. Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, held a long conference with Premier Lloyd George to devise means of checking the growth of Irish violence.

RETAILERS CITIZENS CENTS

Follow the Wholesalers in Lowering Cost of Bread
Loaves

Bread prices fell one and two cents today.

This action of the retailers followed reductions made by the wholesale bakers of Greater Boston.

The wholesalers cut their price of 10 cents for the one-pound loaf to 9 cents and that of the pound and a half size from 14 1/2 cents to 13 cents.

Eleven and 16 cents were the prevailing retail prices throughout the city, although some of the dealers were selling the larger size for 15 cents.

Bread is now on the same basis as it was before the last advance in January, 1929.

Although four prices are lower, the wholesalers declared that they have not yet been able to take advantage of them and are really suffering a loss by today's reduction.

"Cheaper flour will not be available to the larger bakers until some time in January," said A. M. Hathaway, a member of the executive committee of the Master Bakers' Association.

"We are compelled to keep a forty-five to sixty-day stock on hand and a thirty-day stock in transit between the mills and our bakeries."

The public profited in the last advance in flour owing to this system of the bakers, who had from three to four months' of the lower priced stock on hand on route. The increase in bread was not made until January.

According to the value of the flour used in manufacture it should be according to the value of the flour.

"The public at this time, however, is not to expect a further reduction in price because of the lower quotations on flour, and the bakers declared that it was better to make a reduction and accept a loss rather than lose in the volume of business."

Following the wave of assassination and reprisal violence on Sunday, Dublin was taken over by British troops. The Dublin population spent a night of terror.

Street fighting broke out between Sinn Fein volunteers and Black and Tan policemen, and many were wounded on both sides.

Several Sinn Feiners were captured. Troops surrounded Dublin while policemen in the city made numerous raids, arresting large numbers of persons.

Threaten to Kill Officials.

Threats of assassination have been made against officials of the Irish office. All of the officials are armed. A triple guard of policemen surrounds the Irish office.

In addition to the attack upon British officers and officials in Dublin on Sunday morning when fourteen were killed and the reprisal attack by Black and Tan policemen at Croke Park, Sunday afternoon, when many civilians were killed and wounded Dublin Castle today reported outbreaks in other parts of Ireland where several persons were shot to death.

A detachment of Black and Tans was ambushed near Leat. One was killed and the others were seriously wounded. Constable Kearney was dangerously wounded at Newry. Subsequently Black and Tans raided the town.

The telegraph wires became silent during the morning and at noon the Irish Office announced that no further details had been received of Irish outbreaks.

TROOPS MAKE WHOLESALE RAIDS.

An earlier dispatch from Cork said that British soldiers and Black and Tans were making wholesale raids. Sinn Fein leaders at Cork claim to have information that the British authorities plan to equip automobiles with poison gas projectors for the protection of military lorries from ambushes.

The body of an unidentified officer was found near Cork early today.

Near Knappagh a boy was killed by shots which were said to have been fired from a military lorry.

Raids continued at Dublin throughout today. British soldiers occupied Mansion House (the official residence of the Lord Mayor of Dublin) and several leading hotels. All non-resident British officers were recalled to the barracks at Dublin and other Irish cities.

Advices received at 1:30 this afternoon put the number of dead in Ireland since Saturday at thirty-one.

American Commission on Ireland

Commission now sitting at Washington taking testimony on raids and atrocities laid to the British Black and Tan police in Ireland. Left to right they are: Senator David I. Walsh, James H. Maurer, labor representative from Pennsylvania; Jane Adams of Chicago, noted settlement worker; Dr. Frederic C. Howe of Washington, acting chairman of the commission, and Hollingsworth Wood, a new York attorney.

Asks Lives of 2 Irish for One Briton

London, Nov. 22.—"It is imperatively necessary for the government to announce plainly that for every servant of the Crown treacherously murdered in Ireland two or even three Sinn Feiners shall be executed without trial," said the "Globe" today.

"We cannot extinguish the fires of terrorism by sprinkling rosewater upon them."

SIX POLICEMEN MORE SNOW AND BEFORE COURT

Indicted Men of Curtis's New Force All Plead Not Guilty

Six of the policemen and ex-police involved Saturday were arraigned in Suffolk Superior Court today on charges ranging from receiving stolen property to conspiracy and breaking and entering and larceny. They pleaded not guilty. Hall was from $1000 to $2500. No date was set for trial.

Two other officers were to be arraigned before Judge John F. Moran today. Lorraine, Webster and Martin, the ex-police, were also arraigned in connection with the looting of stores on their beats, will be brought in and arraigned tomorrow.

The men arraigned today were all attached to the City Hall avenue station. Here are the specific charges.

Patrolman Adrian Ward of the City Hall avenue station, two counts, 1—breaking and entering the shop of William O'Connor on August 21 last and stealing 200 gallons of wine worth $1000. —Conspiracy to rob O'Connor's shop. Released in $5000 bail.

CHILDREN'S PARTIES TO SWELL BASKET FUND

Children's parties in aid of the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund have been arranged by many Greater Boston boys and girls, anxious to do their "bit" in providing free food for hundreds of families.

Eight-year-old Mary McEllen of No. 44 Bowker street, Brookline, is one of the little girls who is planning such a party.

The children who arrange these affairs charge a small fee which they turn over to the fund. Simple refreshments such as fruit and cake are furnished by their mothers. The talented boys and girls in attendance entertain with plans and violin accompaniment.

HUERTA SAYS FALL MAY ENTER MEXICO

Mexico City, Nov. 22.—Provisional President Huerta denied today that Robert V. Paquet, now on a mission to the United States in connection with the proposed recognition of the Mexican government, had any authority to deliver Paquet's letter to the United States coming into Mexico to see president-elect Carr.

PEABODY HOME GETS $3,000 IN WARD WILL

Under the provisions of the will of the late Mrs. Mary M. Ward of Boston the sum of $3000 is left to benefit the Peabody Home for the Blind.

The Peabody Home for the Blind, 1300 Washington street, Boston, has received the sum of $3000, which is to be known as the Mary M. Ward fund.

STUDENTS FEEL TIGER WILL BE RATED HIGH

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 22.—Princeton undergraduates and graduates as well as feel that the outcome of the Yale-Harvard tilt Saturday strengthens the position of the Tiger football team in its rank among the best. Of course, it is for others to decide upon the various championships. But Princeton men expect something pretty high.

The only hindrance is the tie with Harvard and there is little probability of playing this year. The Princeton camp, Coach Bill Roper said that if the 1921 team is a challenge to the Crimson. The Tiger did win, but there was no challenge. Some thought that the Princeton authorities might discuss the matter after the Yale-Harvard game.

Playoff Unlikely for Two Reasons

For two reasons the playoff is unlikely. In the first place, the Princeton team has been training for more than a week, something that counts heavily. In the second place, a post-season game would disorganize the whole basketball team. For on it are four members of the football team, three of whom were on the basketball team.

STECKER TO USE COAST DEFENCE FULL SCISSORS HOLDS DEVENS

No Mercy for Olin in Feature Match Bout at Holiday Carnival

Joe Stecker intends to use every ounce of the great for a full hour and a half when he faces Olin in defense of his world's wrestling championship in Mechanics Hall tonight. The great wrestler is expected to win from Olin in the quarter. In the past, Stecker has been found of using a full "stecker" in the last round of his wrestling championship as an opponent.

In the case of Olin, however, Stecker is expected to win from Olin in the last round of his wrestling championship as an opponent.

It was in this match that Stecker was so badly injured that it was feared his wrestling days were over. Stecker, however, was over the hurdle and is now in the best of health. He is expected to win from Olin in the last round of his wrestling championship as an opponent.

St. Mark's C. C. Five in Field Again

St. Mark's Catholic Club of Dorchester has reorganized its basketball team and would like to hear from any fast amateur teams in the State.

The first team, which won the championship of Dorchester last year, will include Ed Gallagher and Owen Gallagher of Boston College, Jake Leonard, "Rowdy" McMahon, Steve Griffin and Jack McArthur, former center of the all-star C.

Joe McMahon will receive offers for playing for the first team at any time from home and away from home. He is expected to play for the second team and will book the season, preferably with a team from home. Call Dorchester 1-559 after 7 p. m.

Captain Roper Comes to Battle Martin

Captain Roper, Chicago heavyweight, was due to arrive in Boston today to complete training for his scheduled bout with Bob Martin, the A. K. A. champion, which will be staged in New York City.

At 11 o'clock, the direction of the fight was given by the referee, who was a judge's decision over the fight of American heavyweight Roper was claimed on behalf of the modernist in the cantonments in the United States. Besides Martin he has fought Harry Lewis, Frank Moran, Ned Brown and most of the other top fellows. He has given them all as good as they sent.

Reservations for the bout may be secured at the Faneuil Hall office, room 2, 39 Court street.

'CAV' TO DRIVE B. C. SQUAD

Captain Cavanaugh of the B. C. football team has a lot to do in these closing two weeks of the season. Although the team and Gold eleven successfully turned back the Marist eleven, many faults were evident which Cavanaugh must eliminate if B. C. is to win her last pair of games.

The one thing which must be corrected is the tendency of the backs to fumble once or twice in the course of a game. This was first evident in the game against the Marist eleven, when the backs fumbled the ball in the line of scrimmage. This was repeated in the game against the Marist eleven, when the backs fumbled the ball in the line of scrimmage.

The backs have played at the certain winners and for the first two weeks kept the ball in the hands of the backs. The backs have played at the certain winners and for the first two weeks kept the ball in the hands of the backs.

The Vicious New Railroad Law Should Be Repealed

It is refreshing once in a while to see a body of business men who dare to stand up to the railroads. Our business men ordinarily stand in awe of railroad officials. This has always been one of the objects of giving enormous salaries to our railroad presidents. Business men are inclined to judge the importance and the ability of a man by his income.

Occasionally a business man has the courage and intelligence to stand up for his rights, and he nearly always gets them, together with the respect of the railroad world which has bluffed American business so long and so successfully.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce has for some years been fortunate and New England has been fortunate in having able, experienced and courageous men as their railroad experts. Mr. Ives, who died in his boots, rendered incalculable service to New England in the great struggle against the Morgan raid upon our New England independence, when the poor New Haven was used as his instrument and which ended, as the country knows, in the total disaster of our railroads. He was succeeded by William H. Chandler, who has carried the standard in independence forward with the same intelligence and courage.

Mr. Chandler is now president of the National Industrial Traffic League. He spoke the other day before the National Retail Dry Goods Association. What Mr. Chandler has to say about transportation is always worth hearing, but what he said on this occasion is especially worth hearing and considering. We publish part of it as a part of this editorial because we agree with every word of it and would only change it by adding a few more items to his indictment.

The success of the railroads under private ownership is the wish of all business, but we do not want to be knifed while acting as friends.

The railroads tell you that the government ran them down. Who was running the railroads under government control—and mind you I am not speaking as one in favor of government ownership. The answer is that the same men ran them during the war as ran them after the war, the same crowd which is running them now.

When it takes a freight car 186 days to travel from Peoria, Ill., and thirty-five days from Chicago it is only fair to give that side of the case. There are plenty of cars in the country to carry all its business if they were handled properly. It is not fair to charge the shipper demurrage on the one hand while the railroads themselves, on the other, reserve the right to hold the car on the side tracks for thirty days.

Every one must observe how the tide is turning toward public ownership. Experience with the atrocious Esch-Cummings Bill, with its provisions for plundering the American people and the extent to which it has added to our cost of living, is being realized more and more. The country has been awakened by the shock of learning that the railroads under the first six months of the renewal of private management have run into debt almost as much in the time of profound peace and great prosperity as they ran into debt when operated for two and a half years by the government in the time of a great war when the railroads were used as instrumentalities of war and when cost was not considered.

Under the Esch-Cummings Law the last six months' indebtedness of the railroads must be met out of the public treasury. That is to say, the American people must pay it in taxation, and, worse still, the Interstate Commerce Commission is compelled to grant such an increase of rates as will pay 6 per cent. dividends upon the enormous watered stock of these roads.

The first increase of rates under this Esch-Cummings Law increased the cost of living to every family in the United States by more than two hundred dollars a year, and the end of these increases is not yet.

No wonder the farmers are up in arms. No wonder the workmen on the railroads are disaffected and denounce the law. No wonder that the authors of the law had a desperate struggle to be re-elected in overwhelmingly Republican districts. No wonder that Mr. Buckland, the political representative of the New Haven Railroad, wants every member of Congress who voted for this law to be re-elected. Nothing but a faithless President and a country not yet recovered from the psychological debauch of war and its wretched propaganda could have made such a law possible. One of the next great struggles will be to repeal this law.

Help the Sallies to Help Others' Thanksgiving

We must not forget the Salvation Army this Thanksgiving. Amid all the demands upon us for what we are willing to give there is none more worthy than that for the Salvation Army. Let us never forget that our soldiers thought more of the Salvation Army and said that the Salvation Army were where they were more needed than all the other pampered and society charities together.

We have our own Christmas Basket Fund with which we wish to do as much good as we possibly can, but we hope that the Salvation Army will be able to do as much, or more, good and bring as much, or even more, pleasure to the homes of the unfortunate in this community on Thanksgiving Day as the American people do on Christmas Day with its basket.

Please give to both.

Once-Overs

Mr. Married Man, your wife wants you to look as well dressed as your position and station in life will permit. She regrets your negligence in dress and appearance. Think she pays no attention to this? You are mistaken. She does not like to see your old rusty shoes when a little effort on your part would change the impression you make. And your heavy growth of beard, when a little time and a razor would remove it. That badly wrinkled suit, even if she had to press it. And your solid collar causes her a lot of embarrassment. You want your wife to look right and are proud of her when she is neatly and becomingly groomed. Then why do you not understand that it would do her good to see you looking prosperous, because neat persons always look successful, and who knows but it might help your business standing as well.

More Truth Than Poetry

Intermittent Optimism

By E. E. KIBER

I BELIEVE in being cheerful; Hope will shorten any mile; It is foolish to be fearful. When it's just as cheap to smile. Only weaklings mourn and mumble When they miss the mark or stumble. Fate reserves her choicest favors for the hopeful and the strong; I insist on being merry; I am optimistic—very!

That is, unless I'm bilious, or the plans I've made go wrong. It is futile to be gravenly. Nursing troubles that are past; I believe in thinking bravely. That all things come right, at last; There's no profit in complaining When it happens to be raining.

No one ever found that whining caused a cloud to disappear; You will find me trying daily To perform my duties gayly. If no turn of luck is making me a stranger to good cheer.

I BELIEVE in leaping lightly From my bed at break of day, And I find that smiling brightly Helps me greatly on my way; I refuse to think with sorrow Of the troubles of tomorrow. For I know that no one ever yet has heard the crack of doom; I am always chirping sweetly, Keeping care away completely— When I haven't any reason to be croaking in the gloom.

Customer (writing out check): "I never can keep my check stubs made out to date."

Letters to the Editor

Golf at the Park Once More

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir:—The golfing season of 1920 is nearing its end; the great tournaments have been held; the championships have been awarded, and now that the days are becoming shorter and there is more time for reflection, it may not be out of place to call attention to an achievement which is of importance, not only to those immediately concerned, but to the game of golf throughout the land.

When the golf links at Franklin Park were turned into war gardens, the game hereabouts, so far as municipal golf is concerned, received a body blow, which promised to be fatal. That the first course in the country that gave to the people an opportunity to gain an insight into the advantages to be derived from golf should have been abandoned is well-nigh unbelievable. And yet it is so. That it did not actually occur is due to the present Park and Recreation Department.

If there is any one thing that indicates the greatness of golf, it is the fact that municipal golf, in spite of the starvation policy which has been handed to it in the past by the city, has been able to survive. With putting greens and fairways which, with difficulty, could be distinguished from hazards, it has managed to flourish and hold its ground.

These facts have been jotted down merely to impress upon those who play the game a realization of the debt of gratitude which they owe to the city, and are responsible for the resurrection of municipal golf at Franklin Park. And among those so responsible, as will be readily admitted, are Joseph P. Howe, and "George," efficient and obliging green keeper and his equally efficient and obliging assistants, "Bill" and "George." But even these men could have done but little toward bringing the course to the excellent condition which is promised for it in the near future, without assistance from the powers that be higher up. That this assistance has been rendered in a creditable manner, the extinction of the game at the links is indeed fortunate for the game and for those who play it. That it comes from one who is not himself a sufferer adds much to his credit. One might play for an entire season without seeing him, almost without hearing his name mentioned; the writer hardly knows him by sight; he is no self-advertiser, with him it's all in the day's work. His name, pleasure to recall, is Jim Shea, the present chairman of the Park and Recreation Department of the city.

Selecting Children's Toys

EVERY child has a right to at least a few good toys. They are as essential to child health as food because they build up and sustain the mind as food does the body. The consensus of opinion indicates that "manipulation" toys are best for children between the ages of two and four; "dramatic" playthings best between four and six, and "construction" playthings best between the ages of six and eight, while from eight years upon playthings such as juvenile wireless outfits, games or toys that teach the simpler branches of the exact sciences and those which exercise and train the hands and brain in a somewhat advanced way are best.

A little tot from one to two enjoys dolls, animals and balls made of rubber, wood, knitted or rag materials of plain blocks—all simple enough for his enjoyment.

From two to three a child should be given books about animals and birds, well and brightly illustrated; little garden implements, dolls, larger blocks than at one year; a wheelbarrow or wagon much in miniature, simple pieces of furniture, stuffed animals and other toys of a like kind that are easy to handle. Between three and five years of age the toys used in a well-conducted kindergarten will interest the youngster immensely.

An idea of sequence, color, harmony and repetition is given by stringing wooden beads of various colors; beads of three and five years of age the toys used in a well-conducted kindergarten will interest the youngster immensely. An idea of sequence, color, harmony and repetition is given by stringing wooden beads of various colors; beads of three and five years of age the toys used in a well-conducted kindergarten will interest the youngster immensely.

Between four and five children enjoy imitating life—they begin to feel their desire and their ability to do to some extent at least what their elders do. They are attracted to the many jointed wooden characters—clowns, acrobats, animals and figures—will entertain and instruct a child for hours at a stretch. Such playthings are properly called "dramatic playthings." In that the children are inclined to make the characters "act out" various games or "stunts," and they attribute to their dramatic playthings at this age a certain actual personality dictated by the child's interpretation of right and wrong. There is the bad doll and the good doll, and so on, and it is at this age that parents should be particularly careful in their guidance of the child's character development, because it means much.

The "construction" period of child play comes between the ages of five and eight, when they want to build something definite with their hands rather than sit still and watch a mechanical toy.

Worth While

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox
Reprinted by request. This is one of Mrs. Wilcox's most famous poems.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows by like a song,
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When everything goes "dead wrong."
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent
When nothing tempts you to stray,
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away.
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynic, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered today—
They make up the item of life.
But the virtue that conquers passion
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth,
For we find them but once in a while.

IS COURTING BECOMING WOMAN'S RIGHT?

By Rev. Dr. John Roach

Pastor Calvary Baptist Church,
New York City

ANOTHER piece of startling news has come out of Paris. Having exceeded all the speed limits in connection with every conventional custom, and having recently shocked the world through the news that completely nude women are now to be seen upon the Paris' stage and the dance hall floors of that city, the very latest is that the girls are frankly and brazenly doing the courting, and that the men must hunt on in Paris as would make the recent chase after the escaped and flying convicts pale into insignificance.

We have reason to be thankful—that no slave is owned in the United States of America.

That, unsatisfactory as labor conditions yet are in many places, the condition of the workers is vastly better now than it was in the days of his grandfather. Labor laws protective of and favorable to workers, Presidents and governors consult with them, and they altogether command respect and no contempt. Compare 1920 and 1920. Most of our people are workers. This argument ought to make a deal.

That the war was won by our side, that it did not last long enough after we went in to bring home to us the frightful losses suffered by France.

That there are only a few kings left in the world.

That our country is torn by no religious fanaticism.

That there is now every probability that the nations of the world will work out some feasible plan to do away with war—none plan which which America may heartily enter.

That no great plague has visited us.

That the waste, extravagance and profligacy of wartime are rapidly disappearing and that there is every probability of readjustment without panic.

That while our industrial, educational and political life is far from perfect, there is a healthy and open discussion and that the ways of democracy are open to any improvement when the public mind is willing to agree to it.

That more youth are swarming to our colleges and universities than ever before.

That the last presidential election was decided by no large a majority that the party in power is squarely saddled with responsibility.

That no revolution threatens our nation from within and no bitterness of misunderstanding from without.

That our churches seem to be competing in service, rather than quarreling over creeds.

That our babies are born into a world where, more than ever in time past, honesty is the best policy and achievement the best title to distinction.

That class ideas make less headway among the people and class appeals find small response.

That more and more rich men are feeling that wealth is a responsibility, rather than a privilege.
